There are 23 million Veterans and 37 million dependents in the United States today. This population pays the ultimate sacrifice when serving yet has higher unemployment when returning home - sometimes double, in states like California - than the average civilian unemployment rate. To address this challenge, AxHill LLC has developed a platform that would decrease Veteran unemployment, saving states and the Federal government millions of dollars by putting our Veterans back to work.

VetFolios™ helps Veterans find jobs with the following tools:

- Military skills translation: An application to translate military terms into more common workplace language quickly and easily.
- Mentoring and counseling: Tools to connect Veterans to one another, creating a secure environment for Veterans to help Veterans.
- Veteran-owned business database: Veterans can find and connect with Veteran-owned businesses in their local community.
- Wikipedia of job resources: Veterans can post articles and advice on common job “How-Tos” for other Veterans to use.
- ePortfolios that get results: Veterans demonstrate their skills through multimedia content using video, photos, documents, and reports that are automatically organized and distributable online.

VetFolios™ enables Veterans to find jobs faster and easier. This online community empowers Veterans to create dynamic, multimedia-rich portfolios easily spread through social media integrations with Facebook, LinkedIn, and Twitter. These portfolios will give Veterans a competitive edge over standard resumes and can be the needed difference to secure a job or get an interview with a potential employer.

80% of all employment is gained through word of mouth and networking. VetFolios™ will be the first online networking tool dedicated specifically to Veteran needs, providing Veterans with an easy to use tool to make the necessary connections into positions filled through word of mouth marketing instead of through posting on overwhelmed job boards.

The above portfolio was developed for Mike Barrett, a Navy Veteran who served as an award-winning recruiter for nine years. Upon returning from service, Mike sent over 250 resumes to local companies and did not receive a single call for an interview. Mike turned to VetFolios™ to:

- Help critique his resume from other Veterans and local citizens
- Demonstrate his skills with videos and online presentations
- Create a resume web page to share on popular social networks
- Find Veteran-owned businesses in his local community

VetFolios™ is owned by AxHill LLC, a military science and technologies consulting company in Washington DC. The state of California is currently reviewing a pilot program of VetFolios™ to reduce their Veteran unemployment.
